

From: root@wt6.usdoj.gov@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR,antitrust@ftc.gov@inetgw,Ralph@essen...
Date: 11/16/01 2:17pm
Subject: Microsoft Hegemony: Mafia Monster Bribery

CC: letters@latimes.com@inetgw,letters@sjmercury.com@i...

Re: Microsoft Makes Offer to Holdouts

- > Join in the settlement signed last week by the
- > Justice Department and nine other states
- > and the company will pay all litigation costs
- > they have run up so far, including attorneys fees.
- > The states have 10 days to accept the offer.

Bush's Mafia Monster, Microsoft, attempts to bribe litigators into chucking their principles. It is the profound lack of it's own principles that causes Bush's party to bribe the defenders of productivity, justice, integrity and of course, principles...

- > the Justice Department yesterday filed
- > a formal defense of the agreement, arguing that it
- > provides consumers with "prompt, certain and
- > effective" protection from the software giant's
- > anti-competitive practices.

Considering the Mafia Monster's modus operandi, this is just wishful thinking and lip service - nothing more. While the court system's inherent flaws would postpone relief for at least two years this is no license for the continued abuse that is assured we will witness by this settlement.

"You whine about bribery after government ok murder, rape and torture, I think you simply like to whine..."